National Professional Social Work Month is an opportunity for us to recognize the invaluable contributions of the profession. To those staff working in social work classifications as well as those in all positions dedicated to the well-being of others, thank you for the assistance you provide to our youth, families, and communities.

The National Association of Social Workers (NASW) is leading this year’s Social Work Month celebration with a campaign centered on the theme “Elevate Social Work!” Social workers support youth and their families as they take on a variety of challenges. Skilled at looking at situations in a holistic way, social workers help bring together people and communities to provide youth with effective services while in our care and as they return home. Ultimately, these staff assist young people in reaching their full potential and making our communities safer.

Please join me in thanking all of our social workers, caring professionals who touch the lives of youth each day, helping them overcome life’s hurdles so they can live meaningful, productive lives.
